Obituary

Tommy Lee Wallace, Sr., was born to Tillman Wallace and Fannie Mae Shepherd Wallace on March 1st, 1946. He was the sixth child of eight blessings born to this union.

Early in life, he confessed Christ at Mt. Nebo Baptist Church in Dubberly, LA. He matriculated through Central Consolidated School and went on to study at Grambling State University, Ruthie's School of Beauty, and served in the United States Army where he endured the Vietnam War. After serving in the army, he returned home and enjoyed the peace and reacquaintance of family and friends. Next he decided that it was time to find a job which would help him get ready for the remainder of his life. Tribute

Dear Daddy,

I thought I had more time with you, but God had other plans

Although my heart is broken into pieces, the angels celebrate your entrance

Even though I want to be selfish and keep you to myself

I know your soul has a greater purpose

You were more than a father to me

You were my number one fan

Your unwavering support and unconditional love have set the standard

You were my king

My knight and shining armor

My fishing buddy and best friend

A gentle and humble servant

And still a man's man

You left your mark on the community

Your spirit lives forever in the face of your grandkids

Our time together was priceless and that goes without saying

No words had to be said cause our quality time was loud

You stayed proud even when we disagreed

You stayed down when no one else could see me

You stayed bound to me like your favorite fishing pole

I'm just honored that you are the one who God chose

Now the angels in heaven can get a glimpse of what life is like with you

And maybe one day God will see fit to let me see you

Again...

Love You Always, Niecey
